Elk Grove Man Says He Is Last Marshall Pallbearer

Justice of the Peace W. E. Everson of Elk Grove, so far as he knows, is the last living member of the eight pallbearers who carried James Marshall's coffin up the hill overlooking Coloma, says a Sacramento paper.

In 1883 Everson sold out his interest in a store in Elk Grove and bought an interest in the Last Chance Mine across the river from Coloma on the side of Mount Murphy. He became well acquainted with Marshall and when the discoverer of gold died August 10, 1885, only a short time before Everson decided to leave Coloma, he was chosen to be one of the pallbearers.

Everson does not remember the names of all the escorts but as far as he knows the seventh member to die was James Anderson of Placerville, who succumbed about two years ago.

"The funeral services were held in the Methodist Presbyterian church," Everson tells. "This is the second church up the hill as you make the drive up towards the monument."

"A funeral procession was formed in the Coloma business section. It consisted of all the Masons, Odd Fellows, Grangers and other friends of Marshall. I acted as marshal of the procession."

"G. J. Carpenter, an attorney, officiated at the services.

"Music was furnished by Bine Ingham, Molly Carpenter, and a druggist. I don't remember his name."

"After the services the eight of us started up the hill with the coffin on a bier. Both the bier and the coffin were iron-bound."

"At that time there was no road up the hill—only a trail. The grass was slippery and every man fell more than once. We had to rest many times. The tortuous journey finally was completed and Marshall was lowered to his last resting place while the Coloma Band played at the graveside."

While Everson was in Coloma only a little over two years, the dispatch says, he left behind him much for the citizens of the community to remember him by. One of these was the rejuvenation of the Coloma Odd Fellows Lodge. When he arrived in Coloma in 1883 the lodge had only eleven old-time members. Everson was a member and the organizer of the Elk Grove Odd Fellows Lodge so he set out to build up the Coloma branch.

He had himself appointed grand master pro tem and at the first initiation took in eleven new members. During his stay he continued to build up the organization.

GARDEN VALLEY MINING FIRM ACQUIRES NEW GROUND

The potentially valuable mineral resources of the Weller lease on the nearby Tell Ranch group have been added to the active working properties of the Lode Development company, now operating the Rosecrans and Taylor mines in Garden Valley. Trucking of ore has started over a new road constructed into the Tell ranch, says a Sacramento paper.

Ore is being shipped out to the Rosecrans mill.

The Tell ranch veins are wide and to a great extent free-milling.

Although the 160 acres of the lease are virtually virgin mineral ground, tests have revealed substantial reserves of good mill ore.

The company is reported to be opening up additional reserves of major significance in prospecting at the Taylor property where much work is being carried forward near the end lines of the adjacent Rosecrans mine.

It is credited with a past production in excess of a million dollars and has been developed to the 1200-foot level.

Fire Razes Diamond Landmark

DANCERS HELP FIGHT FLAMES

Lumber In Pioneer Building Was Shipped Round Horn; Structure Total Loss

The Fourth of July weekend was ushered in spectacularly about midnight Saturday night when flames destroyed a historic landmark at Diamond Springs and sent sparks into dry grass for a radius of several hundred yards of the scene.

Dancers who had gathered at Landis Hall for the evening assisted State Division of Forestry fire crew members in beating out the myriad of spot fires with wet sacks, although the burning building was enveloped in flames when the firemen arrived and was a total loss.

The structure which burned is owned by the Varozza Estate and is on the right of highway 49 near the east end of the Diamond Springs Main Street as one drives toward Placerville. It had not been tenanted for several months.

Some possibility that a Mr. Murphy who had been known to stay in the building from time to time may have lost his life in the fire was reported as the flames were in their height, but the gentleman was later located and was somewhat surprised to learn of the night's developments.

When the flames were first noted, they had gained great headway and there was little hope that the structure might be saved from the very start. Work of the firemen and their volunteer helpers was centered on preventing the spread of the fire and this, for a time, presented a serious problem. The absence of wind made the task easier.

The fire broke out about 11:30 o'clock Saturday night and it was approximately four hours later before it was under control.

President Signs Mining Bill

Assessment Suspension Is Continued In Force Until September 1st

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Under a bill signed by President Roosevelt Friday night, holders of mining claims will have until September 1st to begin work without forfeiting claims.

Under the old law, any claim for which a patent had not been issued and on which the holder had not invested $100 worth of labor or improvements during the last fiscal year would have expired at noon today.

Claims will now expire in September unless there is evidence that work has been commenced by that time "in good faith and will be prosecuted with reasonable diligence."

The bill was sponsored by Representative Abe Murdock, Democrat of Utah.

As introduced by Murdock, the bill would have extended the period until October 1st. The senate revised the date however, to September 1st, and the house accepted the amendment.

COUNTY CREWS HELP FIGHT HOBART MILLS FIRE ON TAHOE FOREST

Seventy-five fire-fighters from El Dorado county returned to their headquarters Sunday after helping to control a large fire in the Hobart Mills vicinity on the Tahoe forest last Friday and Saturday.

Thirty-five of the men were supplied from the blister rust control camps on Eldorado Forest and an additional 40 men were taken from the Caldor CCC camp.

The success of the men, under the direction of forest officers, in controlling the Hobart Mills blaze Saturday night made it possible for them to return to their home stations to stand by for possible call in the event of fires on Eldorado Forest during the Independence Day observance.

HOLIDAY FILLS RESORT AREA

Stores Remain Open Monday But Will Join Closing For July 4th

WEATHER

Fair, occasional cloudiness tonight and Tues; normal temperature.

Route 50 automobile travel hit a high mark for the year and resorts in the American River Canyon and at Lake Tahoe were doing a four-day capacity business over the first of July weekend as thousands sought higher altitudes to share a four-day Fourth of July holiday.

In Placerville, the practice which appears to have been general over the northern part of the state was followed by the principal business houses and stores were open Monday while state, county, city and some federal offices took advantage of the Monday holiday proclaimed by the President and by Governor Olson.

Tuesday, however, all of the principal stores as well as the official offices will be closed.

Postoffice service on Monday was on regular schedule although the Forest Service headquarters was closed. However, a sufficient number of forest officers were on call to take immediate charge in the event of any outbreak of fire in the forest area.

The weather forecast was for continuing fair weather through Tuesday.

Traffic officials, rejoicing at the absence of accidents thus far, looked forward to the heaviest travel of the season Tuesday afternoon and evening as the holiday celebration went their ways homeward.

Threat Of War Spurs Copper

Monday Export Sales 4 Cents Off Saturday Figure; France Buys

NEW YORK. (AP)—The copper industry began the second half of 1939 today with brightening prospects which reflected improved foreign demand and increased domestic consumption.

War demands are expected to boost current purchases of France to 50,000 tons, following the purchase last Friday of 21,000 tons. Other customers of European cartel also are expected to increase their stocks in the near future.

Today's sales of export copper were made from 10.175 to 10.20 cents, compared with 10.24 cents on Saturday. Holiday considerations restricted the day's operations.

Domestic copper remained unchanged, quoted from 10 to 10 1/2 cents a pound, delivered.

State Fire Crew Fights Blaze Near Kelsey

The state Division of Forestry Monday afternoon had a crew of fifteen men fighting a brush and timber fire a mile and two-fifths east and a little to the north of Kelsey.

CHECK SUSPECT ADMITS FRAUD

Man Jailed Friday On Hotel's Complaint Gives Signed Statement

The sheriff's office revealed Monday morning that Adam Eugene Snyder, who was arrested Friday morning, had signed at statement taken by District Attorney Henry Lyon admitting his guilt of issuing bad checks.

The statement, officers said, included an admission that when he registered at Hotel Raffles he did not use his right name but gave the name of "Rudders."

He also confessed, the officers said, that he issued checks under the name of Rudders knowing that there was no account in the San Mateo County bank on which the checks were drawn in that name, and confessed further that he had issued checks similarly in Los Angeles and in Reno on previous occasions.

The officers reported that Snyder had served jail terms for both prior offenses.

Snyder with his wife had been in Placerville three days when the couple checked out of Hotel Raffles Friday morning after leaving three checks for $10 each. Ascertaining by telephone that the man had no account at the bank on which the checks were drawn, Manager L. A. Raffetto informed officers.

Snyder, it was reported, was unable to understand how officers had been able to apprehend him so quickly since, it was said, he had left his car parked in an alley during stay here and did not suspect that it was generally known that he was driving a car.

However, following Manager Raffetto's complaint, a search of the room occupied by Snyder and his wife revealed a gasoline purchase receipt which gave the license number of their car, and a broadcast of the state highway patrol resulted in their apprehension at Folsom.

The car was taken into possession by a finance company Sunday.

By JANE VOILES

It isn't so long ago that stage coaches clattered down our mountain sides and we have all heard of someone who was in a stage coach when it was held up by bandits. While working on his book "Everybody's Gold," Joseph Henry Jackson discovered that the California bandits were known mostly by a few spectacular events in their lives and that they could very well be the subjects of an authentic study. He selected four of these knights of the road for special attention and "Types in Gold" (The MacMillan Co., $2.50) is the result. Murieta, you may be pleased to know, does not appear in the number. You will find Black Bart, most famous of the California bandits who wore a genteel derby or a flour sack as the occasion demanded. Rattlesnake Dick, the most dashing, about whose memory there still clings a glimmer of romance. Dick Fellows, the most droll, who always had to have a horse, and Tom Bell, a bad hombre. This is the first significant study of Black Bart's career in California to be made. We all know that he looked like a deacon of the church, that he wrote doggerel signed POB and that he had 28 stage coach robberies to his discredit. Mr. Jackson has rounded out this sketchy information with substantial facts. He goes into the details of that 28th robbery that took place over in Tuolumne county and into the account of Bart's capture. Having communicated with Black Bart's granddaughter, Mr. Jackson brings to light all that is known about the latter part of Bart's life.

Rattlesnake Dick who frequented the highway between Rattlesnake Bar and Folsom began life as the respectable son of a British army officer. When the world turned against him, instead of trying to fight it back, Dick turned bandit. His nimble mind could plan the most daring robberies, as the $80,000 gold robbery on Trinity Mountain but he wasn't always successful in carrying them out. Rattlesnake Dick knew how to elude the law. When he was captured he knew how to break out of jail with a Houlihan-like skill. He didn't die in prison and he wasn't hanged, but his melodramatic end made a fitting close to his life.

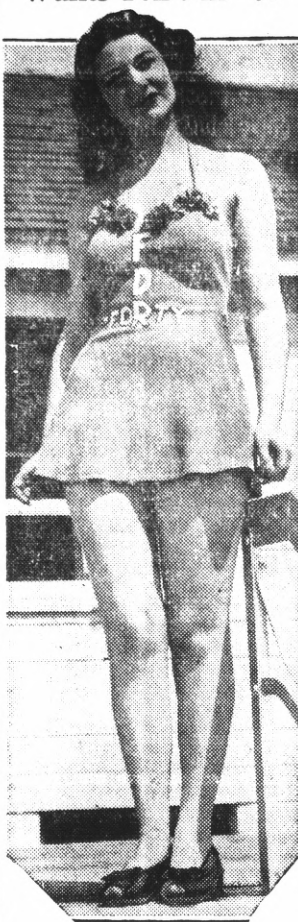

Organizing a Bible class and taking on the earmarks of a redeemed soul shortened Dick Fellows' term at San Quentin jail, but there were two things Dick couldn't resist: popping a gun in front of a stage coach and riding a horse. Unlike Black Bart who would not have a horse, Dick wouldn't do without one and horses were his undoing. In the intervals of serving time, Dick could set himself up as a teacher of languages. A fast talker, often-times he could put it over on some of those thumb-in-the-vest sheriffs. Yet Dick's career had a happy ending, in a sense, as he reformed for the third or fourth time and became a highly exemplary sheep among the goats of Folsom.

There were two bandits named Tom Bell. One was a small time bandit of no consequence, but Dr. Thomas J. Hodges of the Tennessee Volunteers who "was a cold-blooded vicious gunman and thief" took the name in order to mystify the officers. With his gang the big Tom Bell was the first man to hold up a stage coach that carried gold dust. The story of that robbery, one of the most dramatic in California history, is accurately told in Mr. Jackson's account of Tom Bell.

These studies are the result of thorough research as Mr. Jackson does not hold with fictionalized biography, even the dialogue is based on fact. You will find no sensational overstatements to heighten effects. Written in the informal language of the day, never "literary" with the right flavor of anecdote and humor, the book reads easily and is the kind you will want to circulate from hand to hand and not allow to lie idle on a shelf. Needless to say that the book will become a part of California's story.

Sound judgment based on long experience with books and with the men and women who write them and an interest of many years in the Mother Lode section makes Mr. Jackson the very man to reevaluate our past. We are all a little fed up on the Mark Twain-Bret Harte legends and the rip-snortin', hell-roarin' forty-niner aspect, "Types in Gold" just out and "Everybody's Gold" to be published sometime this year are reevaluating books. In addition, Mr. Jackson has a discerning eye for facts hidden in legend, and an understanding mind for human ways.

Practical Planning

Practicality is united with economy in this home. Although compact, it is of sufficient size to meet the requirements of the average family. The house contains five rooms with attached garage and is representative of the ever-popular Cape Cod style of architecture. One of its most valuable features is that both bedrooms and bath open on a small hallway, making it unnecessary to cross other rooms. The Federal Housing Administration assigned a valuation of $4,750 to this home.

JAPS REPORT TRAPPING MONGOLS IN BORDER BATTLE

TOKYO, (AP)—Japanese dispatches reported today that 4000 outer Mongolian troops had been surrounded by Japanese on the Manchukuan frontier after a big battle between Japanese and Soviet-sponsored forces.

TIENTSIN, (AP)—A Japanese spokesman at Peiping said today that compromise between the Japanese and British at Tientsin was impossible and that the Japanese might resort to force unless the British accepted demands made by the Japanese-dominated "provisional government" at Peiping.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

The Communist Party, through its state secretary, one William Schneiderman, has come out with a public endorsement of the "Ham and Eggs" pension proposal. That, in itself, of course, cannot be construed as an indictment of the Thirty-Thursdays scheme, for sometimes even the best of movements are embarrassed by questionable friends and unwanted endorsements.

But this particular endorsement—and the explanatory statement which attended it—should at least make the many sincere men and women, who have been led to believe in the pension plan, stop, look and listen.

For the Communist Party, though endorsing the program and announcing its intention to support it on the ballot, makes the bald assertion in its statement of endorsement that "the plan, even if passed, cannot be operated!"

Why, then, is the Communist Party ready and willing to support a program of aid for the aged which it admits is unworkable and foredoomed to failure?

The answer doubtless lies in the fact that it is a definite, deliberate part of the program of radicals and revolutionaries, aiming at the overthrow of American government, to support any and all schemes which they believe will foment class hatreds, distrust, social unrest and bitterness.

If the "Ham and Eggs" dream evaporates into thin air and hundreds of thousands of old people, who have been induced to part with dimes and quarters and half dollars to promote it, are confronted with bitter disillusionment, what of it?

According to the creed of the radical agitator, their misery and disappointment will serve a good purpose. It will help to destroy their faith in American institutions. It will hasten the revolution!

But so that there need be no misunderstanding nor confusion regarding the nature of the Communist endorsement issued by the Communist Party's secretary, Mr. Schneiderman, as published in "The People's World," the recognized Communist organ for the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Schneiderman, of course, has another explanation—at least for public consumption—of the party's action in approving a plan which it admits will break down and can't possibly operate. Here it is:

"The Communists Party believes that all progressive-minded people supporting the New Deal, regardless of their views on the workability of the plan, should support its passage."

Beauties All

A massive bouquet of American Beauty roses, gift from an admirer, frames the face of a British beauty, as Queen Elizabeth smilingly poses amid the blooms. On almost every stop of the royal tour the Queen is seen holding a bouquet, but none ever as appropriate as this one.

as a means to defeat the reactionary "economy" bloc and reinforce the people's mandate for social security and recovery measures.

The basic criticism of the $30 Every Thursday pension which our party made last year remains in force today despite modifications in the right direction. This criticism is based on the fact that the plan, even if passed, cannot be operated because it does not provide for a means of financing it through taxing the accumulated wealth of big capital, the only means which could bear the cost of a workable security and recovery program without shifting the burden to the shoulders of those least able to pay.

Like most Communist utterances, that statement is deliberately designed to stir up class hatred. The adroit propaganda comes out in the words "big capital." To get adequate pensions, the capital must be taken from capitalists.

The plain fact that there are very few "capitalists" left (at least that have any capital) doesn't disturb the agitator. Facts never annoy soap-box orators. But just for the record, the fact is that if all the wealth of all the millionaires in the United States should be divided, each American would receive as his share just 66 cents! That, to be sure, wouldn't go far toward paying "$30 Every Thursday"—but that doesn't bother the Communists either, for they know the scheme wouldn't work and have no real desire that it should. That would defeat their purposes.

Old people who have been led into supporting the Thirty-Thursdays plan need to back up and take another look. And with their reappraisal of the plan, they might well look into the motives of some of its supporters!

fore the firemen were able to withdraw.

It is reported that the lumber in the building was shipped around the horn in pioneer times and that the two-story building was erected about eighty years ago. In earlier times it had served as a hotel, later becoming a store and postoffice building.

In more recent years it had not been kept up and had been tenanted from time to time, being vacated by the last family something over a year ago.

More recently Mr. Murphy had made the place his headquarters at intervals.

Alex Ilsohn reports that the structure, in its hey-day, was known as the California House and that it was erected in 1850 by Tom Newlands, of timbers shipped around the Horn. J. P. D. Ilsohn brought the property in 1861 from Louis Le Petit.

Alex Ilsohn was born in the building. The structure was operated under the elder Mr. Ilsohn's management as a hotel until his death, when the family sold the property.

By HENRY McLEMORE

New York...Prophecy. The man who will finally defeat Joe Louis and succeed him as heavyweight champion of the world will be a doctor.

I feel certain of this because doctors, more than any other class of people, are always getting first hand accounts of Joe's weaknesses and just what is needed to beat him.

No sooner is one of Joe's victims readied for the operating table than he starts telling the consulting surgeons, who are there to mend him, just what Louis lacks as a champion and how to capitalize it. Max Schmeling spoke above the rattling of his loose vertebrae to brand Louis as a man who couldn't hit.

Max Baer interrupted the hem-stitching on his face to point out the champion's flaws and how he could be taken. At the risk of having all his teeth fall on the floor, Jim Braddock rose from his bed of pain to tell the men of mercy who stood solemnly about that Louis was just a flash in the pan and wasn't here to stay.

So did all the other Louis Challengers, the latest being Tony Galento. At the risk of being torn apart by the "protective" New York policemen who guarded his dressing room, I followed Galento into his Yankee Stadium retreat after he had been knocked out in four rounds by Louis.

Still out of his mind, and with his face furrowed like a corn field with nasty cuts, Mr. Galento mumbled through those horribly swollen lips that Joe Louis was a bum and couldn't hit a lick. As physicians put enough clamps on his wounds to hang out the Monday wash of a family of five, Galento told them that Louis never really hit him, but that he just "shoved me around." Later, wearing a smart ice cap at a rakish angle and outfitted in the latest pastel shades of gauze and tape, Tony demanded a return match.

"The next time I'll knock the bum out. I just got careless, else I would have beat hell out of him this time," he said.

I hate to utter a discordant note at this time of Galento's greatest "triumph" -- when the papers are dripping with columns of praise for him as a fighter and a man. But isn't it time that Louis got a little praise for being a fighter? Isn't it time that we stop making heroes of men who last three, four, or five rounds with him, and give the colored boy his due as a tremendous biter and fellow with a fair amount of courage?

It is getting so that the men Louis beat to a pulp receive more credit for not being killed outright than Louis does for rendering them help less. If a man goes into the ring against Louis and shows enough courage to walk forth to meet him he is hailed as a Richard the Lion-Hearted. A resolute and stout fellow.

It seems to have been forgotten that Louis is still a man and not a machine. He eats, sleeps, shaves like all the men he fights.

He has all the human foibles. His chin is not above being hurt, and his stomach will yield to a mighty blow. In a way, the praise that is heaped of the men that last a few rounds with Louis is the highest form of tribute to the champion. His record is so tremendous, his hitting so devastating, that he now is looked upon as a robot killer, and we have evolved an entirely new method of measuring challengers for the title. They don't have to win to earn the laurel wreath. All they have to do is to escape with their lives, show a little courage, and make it last long enough to get all the customers seated.

Jean Arthur and Cary Grant are co-starred together for the first time in the new Howard Hawks production, "Only Angels Have Wings," which is now showing on the screen of the Empire Theatre. They appear against the romantic background of tropical South America. Also featured in the Columbia picture, a story of reckless adventure in the skies, are Richard Barthelmess, Rita Hayworth and Thos. Mitchell.

MOVIES BUILD A RANCH, OCEAN WITH SAILING SHIP, AND AN AIRPORT AS SETTING FOR "ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS"

The magnitude of the two main sets of Columbia's Howard Hawks production "Only Angels Have Wings" is still a topic of awed conversation in a Hollywood whose most familiar adjectives are "colossal" and its synonyms. The film, which co-stars Cary Grant and Jean Arthur for the first time at the Empire Theatre, is a colorful tale of South American romance and adventure. The picture will be shown tonight and Tuesday.

The two major sets represent a banana port and aviation field at the base of the Andes in the Pacific tropics. One section of the set was built at Columbia's ranch in the San Fernando valley; the other was built on two stages in the Hollywood studio.

The ranch set shows the base of the Andes, 17 buildings of the little tropical seaport, a section of the bay and the banana freighter which has just been moored to the jutting pier, a smaller pier leading from "The Dutchman's" -- a rambling structure of poles, bamboo and palm leaves which is saloon, general store, cafe, hotel and headquarters of the aviation company.

More than 500 workmen were employed for several months in construction of the huge set, which was entirely enclosed by a special canvas-coveher structure to permit the effects of constant fog, rain and wind. Seventy-foot clearance from the surface of the bay to the center of the roof was permitted by the huge two-foot thick poles brought from Los Angeles to support the overhead trusses. Great bow-shaped wood spans extended from the poles, which were sunk in concrete bases, and on these rested transverse spans 140 feet in length. Three acres of canvas tented the entire structure and under the roof was rigged piping which shed water at the rate of 3,500 gallons an hour.

More than 500,000 feet of lumber were used in construction of the buildings, which also required 10,000 square feet of galvanized iron roof covering, two truckloads of bamboo and about 7,000 palm leaves. A narrow-gauge railway runs along 500 feet of the shore and out onto the main pier, six flat-cars haul bananas along this miniature railway.

The basis excavated for the ocean-front was about 75 feet by 250 feet and has been prepared for permanent use at the ranch. It is four feet deep, and required the excavation of 4,000 cubic yards of earth. Lined with asphalt, it now holds almost two million gallons of water.

Five tons of steel were used in construction of the freighter which moves through the harbor and ties up at the pier. The bow of the vessel extends 19 feet out of water, its super structure extends 40 feet above the waterline. Four truckloads of marine fittings dressed the boat, which has a working derrick and other practicable maritime machinery.

ELECTRIC COOKING COSTS 1/2 AS MUCH AS YOU THINK!

NEW FAST 1939 ELECTRIC RANGE combines LOW COST, SPEED, SURE RESULTS

Although thousands of electric range users in California know the reasonable low cost of electric cooking, a recent survey proved that guesses of those who did not know--averaged twice the actual cost.

Electric cooking is really economical cooking. Present low electric rates, highly perfected new heating elements in modern electric ranges, heavily insulated ovens that conserve heat, exact heat measurement at the snap of a switch which keeps current use down to a minimum--all contribute to the low cost of electric range operation.

Have you guessed an electric range is SLOW?

Guess again. All of the 1939 Electric Ranges are completely equipped with Speed Units. These Speed Units are so fast and so intensely hot you will only use them for brief High Heat cooking periods. Most of your cooking will be done on money-saving Low Heat.

Have you guessed that electric cooking is DIFFICULT?

Guess again. Electric Ranges simplify cooking because of the miraculous automatic controls. Oven meals almost cook themselves.

Have you guessed that electric cooking is EXPENSIVE?

Guess again. Electric Cooking costs have been dropping steadily downward. One reason is that the electric rate for cooking is now very low. Another reason is that the NEW Electric Ranges use much less electricity. $2.58 is the average monthly cost for cooking with 42,000 electric range users.
